Chapter 1 by Taylor

Today, I woke up hoping that yesterday was all a dream.

Chapter 2 by m a r i e

I hope that it was over but no... the Man in the Moon has other ideas.....

Chapter 3 by Taylor

Today I looked down at my wrist and was pleased to see that my scars are fading.

Chapter 4 by Natalya Nugent

The purple that use to ravage my skin now disappearing turning back to my regular pale white skin tone. I look in the mirror mv heart pounding mv phone rings and I nad across mv bedroom to it. It's Kyle and my heart pounds even harder.

"What do i do" I say to myself, should i pick it up or not. I answer it and ask "what is the matter". He says in a rushed tone "HELP". The phone hangs up and I start to get anxious. I put on some cloths and go downs stairs and notice that the TV is on but it shouldn't be so I know something is up.

Chapter 6 by Briauna Collins

I'm already shaking, but this is worse than before. I look around, no one but the cat. He meows, warning me of whats coming. I feel the warmth of a body before I see it. I freeze not knowing what I could do.

Chapter 7 by Jon Paz

At that moment, everything went dark. This is where my story begins. In this darkness; the depths of my subconscious. Of course, this wasn't a dream or another fainting spell. This time, I was forced to return to the blackness by a white-skinned man with a heavy bludgeon. I couldn't make out his face before he hit me, but I knew who he was. And deep down, I knew this was coming from the moment I met him.

Chapter 8 by Joy Milton

He wasn't always like this: angry and violent. He was once a kind and sweet man. He used to love me more than anything in this world. But then they took him. He was gone for a while. When he came back, he was different. He didn't smile or laugh. There was no light in his eyes. He looked at me differently. He was acting very weird, locking the doors and windows, always talking of the "Big Brother". Then I fell in love with Kyle. And that set him off.
